WHEAT PRICE DROPS TO $1.00 PER BUSHEL

ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE, THE LOW- EST IN FIVE YEARS

THE PRICE WAS DRIVEN DOWN BY WILD TRADING IN THE PIT

PREDICTION IS MADE THAT PRICE
WILL NOT STOP AT $1.00, BUT DECLINE FURTHER

(By United Press.)

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Wheat sold today at $1.00 a bushel on the Chicago board of trade the first time in five years that it reached that low a mark.

The price was driven down to the dollar mark by wild trading in the pit. Scores of brokers made futile efforts to hold the price above the dollar mark.

"If wheat isn't worth a dollar it isn't worth a damn," a broker said. Millers were credited with driving down the price. Hundreds of brokers and traders watched the prices slowly driven down until it reached $1.00.

"I was afraid of it," remarked the man operating a corner market. "I haven't got a nickel in the wheat market, however. Wheat won't stop at a dollar, it will go down much further. There isn't any consumptive demand to force up the market. Europe is shot—so poor that we cannot look for an export demand to boost up the market. We once regarded $1.00 a bushel as an ideal price, but it doesn't pay the cost of growing now," he said.

Dropped Below $1.00 Mark
The market failed to rally before the close. December wheat closed at 99 cents.

Does Not Pay Production Cost
Wheat at $1.00 a bushel does not begin to pay production costs, farm experts today asserted.

Figures prepared by the University Farm at St. Paul showed that it cost a Minnesota farmer an average of $1.57 a bushel to produce this year's wheat crop.

Sherman also denied Arbuckle had ever said to him that he (Arbuckle) had told him that he had been waiting for Miss Rappe for five years. In recounting details for the party which led up to the movie actress' death, Sherman said that no particular member of the party was visibly intoxicated.

When Miss Rappe began to moan and tear at her clothing, Arbuckle left the apartment to call a physician, Sherman said. He added that several of those in the party aided in putting Miss Rappe into a tub of icewater in Arbuckle's apartment.

PEACE PRAYERS ASKED ON ARMISTICE DAY BY PREUS

Armistice Day, November 11, is by act of the 1921 Minnesota Legislature a legal holiday in Minnesota, and its observance is asked in a proclamation made public today by Governor Preus.

"This year the day has a special significance because it is the eve of the opening of the world's disarmament conference called by President Harding," Governor Preus says in his proclamation. "The nations of the world, already staggering under the debt caused by the last great war, should welcome this opportunity to join in reducing the burden of preparation for possible future conflicts. While we should proceed cautiously and not with the idea of having peace at any price, nevertheless we earnestly hope that something tangible and practical may come out of this conference."

"I therefore, urge that wherever practicable, services be held in the churches on Armistice Day, and where this cannot be done, that our people in their customary places of worship on the preceding Sunday, offer special prayers to the Almighty for His blessing on the conference."

"Let us in this way venerate the memories of the heroes who died in the World War and let us dedicate ourselves as a nation to the achievement of international justice and good will, which are essential to any real reduction of armaments and the attainment of permanent peace."

LOW PRICES, TIMES HARD IN CHILE

(By United Press.)

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 3.—It begins to look as if the present financial crisis will deprive Santiago of its annual grand opera season. The Chilean, shares with his brother Latin an intensive love for grand opera, but it is apparent that this passion is not equal to pawing the limousine or the family jewels in order to support an operatic season during a period of slack business.

The jewelry and art goods business here has also practically stopped. The only ones who appear to be buying diamonds and other precious stones are speculators or well-fixed bargain hunters, few in number, who are taking advantage in the fall of prices. Many wealthy and moderately-circumstanced Chilean families have placed their family jewelry with jewelers for sale. It is possible to obtain one-carat white diamonds as low as ninety or one hundred dollars in American money. American and British travelers are the principal purchasers of the diamonds.

Well made men's shoes on snappy American style lasts sell from $4 to $8 a pair; tailor made suits of good woolen cloth at from $20 to $30, with overcoats at the same price; shirts of good materials at $1.50 to $2, and made to measure in the best shops for from $3 to $4. In spite of the low prices of clothing there is comparatively little buying. The period of business depression has caused such unemployment and wages are low.

WATSON REITERATES CHARGES OF GREAT BRUTALITY TO VETS

Washington, Nov. 3.—Senator Watson, of Georgia, launched into a bitter attack upon the senators who criticized him for the charges he had made that American soldiers were hanged without trial in France.

The Georgian reiterated his charges and declared that he could substantiate every word he uttered.

Watson had a paper which he said contained pictures of the hanging of American soldiers in France. Watson then showed a letter which he had received from an ex-serviceman in Pennsylvania, who stated he had a photograph of a scaffold upon which two negroes were hanged in France. The writer stated that the soldiers encamped a short distance from there were invited to the hangings.

"NEVER AGAIN WAR"; IS SLOGAN OF NEW GERMANY

By CARL D. GROAT,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Nov. 3.—"Nie wieder Krieg"—"never again war."

This is the slogan of an ever-increasing army in Germany, the cry of men who have come to a realization finally that war is a losing game for all concerned; the appeal of women who suffered through the German "turnip winter"; the call of children cheated of their rightful heritage—a sound body—through war shortages.

Germany, as a whole, doesn't want any more war—not this generation at least. It is fed up on war.

This is my firm conviction after talks with men in all walks of life in Germany the past two years and a careful observation of the trend of thought and affairs in the new Germany.

France's alleged fear of a new German invasion is, at the moment, a senseless bugaboo, according not only to Germans, but also to English officers.

The one thing that can make that fear an actuality, according to many authorities, is a further growth of "French chauvinism and militarism."

Germany—undoubtedly forgetting the ravages her armies made in France—fails perhaps to see the ground for French anxiety and bitterness. On the other hand, the conviction is settling even deeper in the German psychology, that France, if unhindered by England, would dismember Germany, leaving her a bloodless land, without economic strength. Germany is bitter over France's play in Upper Silesia. Germany resents constant French pressure in the west, and thinks France would emasculate the German industrial region.

These and other things make the average German feel that France is trying to make more than her pound of flesh. At the same time, the average man forgets the republic at the start, trimmed and backed and filled, seeking outs in the treaty until Wirth came forward with the pronouncement that Germany was going to play fair and proceed to fulfill. Wirth has somewhat swung around the French attitude.

But there is in Germany today a smouldering hatred of France, which perhaps in the next generation—not in this—will lead to a new war.

Germany at present is not in a position to wage war. She is disarmed. I say this on the authority of no less a personage than the British General Bingham, of the allied disarmament commission.

Just now, German industry is too busy trying to capture world markets and meet reparations to think about any more war. And the "man in the street" is even less anxious for a war than perhaps his capitalist master. I have queried groups of laboring men as to whether they wanted any more war. They all agreed they didn't. On one occasion I expressed doubt as to their sincerity and asked if they were willing to sign their names to a sworn statement. They took the matter seriously, and soon brought me a paper with their names, swearing they wanted no more war, and saying the document could be used in any way I wished.

The new Germany has had enough of war.

MAC NIDER NEW COMMANDER OF LEGION FORCES

IOWA SOLDIER ELECTED NATIONAL
CHIEF; KANSAS CITY CON-VENTION COMES TO CLOSE

(By United Press.)

Convention Hall, Kansas City, Nov. 3.—The national convention of the American Legion adjourned here yesterday after electing Hanford MacNider, of Mason City, Iowa, national commander selecting other officers, adopting resolutions covering a wide range of subjects. The convention had been in session without a recess since early morning.

The election of Mr. MacNider to succeed John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich., was made unanimous after more than half of the state delegations had seconded his nomination, and three other candidates nominated, Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City, Earl M. Cline of Nebraska City, Neb., and John F. Williams of Joplin, Mo., had withdrawn in his favor.

Vice Commanders Named

The following vice commanders were elected:

George L. Berry of Rogersville, Tenn.; H. Nelson Jackson of Burlington, Vt., and Charles Kendrick, of San Francisco, representing the army and Raymond Brackett of Marblehead, Mass., and J. A. McCormick of Fort Lyon, Colo., of the navy.

The Rev. Earl Blackman of Chautauque, Kan., a minister of the Christian church—discipline of Christ—was elected national chaplain.

Headquarters Fight Dropped

A fight for the removal of the national headquarters from Indianapolis to Kansas City which the Missouri delegation promised in pre-convention campaigning to bring on the floor, did not develop.

The selection of the Iowan was apparent when state after state delegation seconded his name. Toward the end candidates already nominated began withdrawing in his favor. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City was the first to withdraw his name. Earl M. Cline of Nebraska City then withdrew, and Col. John F. Williams of Joplin, Mo., who also had been nominated, withdrew and asked that MacNider's nomination be made unanimous. The crowd greeted the suggestion with shouts of approval.

New Commander Cheered

The new commander was brought to the platform amid cheers and a big Iowa standard was raised over his head. He thanked the delegation for the honor and declared he realized his responsibility as chief of the Legion.

"Greatest War Hero" Is "Model Husband;" Helps With Dishes

Fort Thomas, Kan., Nov. 3.—Reporters hurried out to the house at 167 Alexandria Pike today to find out what sort of fellow is Sergeant Samuel Woodfill, who has just been proclaimed as outstanding among the greatest of war heroes by General John J. Pershing.

They were met by Mrs. Woodfill. She cited him for most distinguished conduct as a husband. He helps with the dishes, she said, and when she was ill recently he helped his mother-in-law with the housework.

His thoughts are all of his home. He has nine decorations given him by various governments. His wife pins on him what is called the most distinguished honor of all—to wit: "M. H."—model husband. While his wife was thus honoring him, Samuel Woodfill was in Washington to receive the tribute of a grateful nation and participation in the burial Nov. 11 of the "unknown American soldier."

When he received the telegram ordering him to go to Washington and receive the honors due him, he said to his wife: "I am tired of being a circus pony. I wish I could retire to the backwoods, where they could never find me."

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 3.—The secretary of state, formerly of St. Paul, today refused to sign one half million dollars worth of bonds, said by the bank administration to have been sold to the Stipeer Ronck company of Toledo. They were presented to him for signature by B. Poirer.

He said he believed a commission agreement had been made with the company to sell the bonds, and that they would cost the state in excess of the six per cent interest allowed by law.

LOW PRICES, TIMES HARD IN CHILE

(By United Press.)

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 3.—It begins to look as if the present financial crisis will deprive Santiago of its annual grand opera season. The Chilean, shares with his brother Latin an intensive love for grand opera, but it is apparent that this passion is not equal to pawning the limousine or the family jewels in order to support an operatic season during a period of slack business.

The jewelry and art goods business here has also practically stopped. The only ones who appear to be buying diamonds and other precious stones are speculators or well-fixed bargain hunters, few in number, who are taking advantage in the fall of prices. Many wealthy and moderately-circumstanced Chilean families have placed their family jewelry with jewelers for sale. It is possible to obtain one-carat white diamonds as low as ninety or one hundred dollars in American money. American and British travelers are the principal purchasers of the diamonds.

Well made men's shoes on snappy American style lasts sell from $4 to $8 a pair; tailor made suits of good woolen cloth at from $20 to $30, with overcoats at the same price; shirts of good materials at $1.50 to $2, and made to measure in the best shops for from $2 to $4. In spite of the low prices of clothing there is comparatively little buying. The period of business depression has caused such unemployment and wages are low.

N. D. INDEPENDENTS PLAN TO END STATE OWNERSHIP PLAN

AS SOON AS NEWLY ELECTED
CANDIDATES TAKE OFFICE

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 3.—Independents here arranged today to inaugurate Governor Nestos as soon as they come into power.

Governor Nestos said today he believes they will have more power than any other body in the land, and will be able to convert the Bank of North Dakota into a rural credit bank.

Governor Nestos also said that he believed they had the power not only to convert the Bank of North Dakota, but to end the state ownership program with completion of the mill at Grand Forks. It will also be possible to liquidate the home building association. They will try to make disposition of all houses erected so far, and get out with as small cost to taxpayers as possible.

In the senate leaders today took action to reinstate the injunction against the Bank of North Dakota at Jamestown. This institution was declared insolvent by the petitioners.

Wright Worked in Fargo

Fargo, Nov. 3.—Wilbur Wright, one of the Wright brothers who invented the aeroplane once worked in Fargo as a mechanic. His boss liked him personally but "thought he had bats in his belly when he prophesied how men would one day fly through the air with same ease then traveled on railroad trains. That was about 12 years ago."

Attacks Tax Levies

Bismarck, Nov. 3.—Levies to fight grasshoppers in Burke and Renville counties are attacked as unconstitutional by the Great Northern railroad company. The company does not attack the specific tax but holds that the limit law was exceeded. This law permits political subdivisions to levy for 1921, one third of the levies for 1918, 1919 and 1920. The amount can be exceeded only by the calling of a special election.

Ask Discontinuance of Charges

St. Paul, Nov. 3.—The state railroad and warehouse commission today heard the application of the St. Paul Hay Board of trade for discontinuance of consignment charges on cars of hay. Charges for reconsignment now forced the price of hay and straw to a high figure, dealers asserted.

He Had His Doubts

An elderly man was persuaded by one of his sons to go with him to a boxing exhibition.
The son paid for two $2 seats.
"Now, dad," said the son joyfully, "you'll see more excitement for your $2 than you've ever seen in your life before."
The old man grunted.
"I've got my doubts about that," he said gloomily. "Two dollars was all I paid for my marriage license."—London Weekly Telegraph.

WATSON REITERATES CHARGES OF GREAT BRUTALITY TO VETS

Washington, Nov. 3.—Senator Watson, of Georgia, launched into a bitter attack upon the senators who criticized him for the charges he had made that American soldiers were hanged without trial in France.

The Georgian reiterated his charges and declared that he could substantiate every word he uttered.

Watson had a paper which he said contained pictures of the hanging of American soldiers in France. Watson then showed a letter which he had received from an ex-service man in Pennsylvania, who stated he had a photograph of a scaffold upon which two negroes were hanged in France. The writer stated that the soldiers encamped a short distance from there were invited to the hangings.

"NEVER AGAIN WAR"; IS SLOGAN OF NEW GERMANY

By CARL D. GROAT.

New York, Nov. 3.—"Nie wieder Krieg"—"never again war."

This is the slogan of an ever-increasing army in Germany, the cry of men who have come to a realization finally that war is a losing game for all concerned; the appeal of women who suffered through the German "turnip winter"; the call of children cheated of their rightful heritage—a sound body—through war shortages.

Germany, as a whole, doesn't want any more war—not this generation at least. It is fed up on war.

This is my firm conviction after talks with men in all walks of life in Germany the past two years and a careful observation of the trend of thought and affairs in the new Germany.

France's alleged fear of a new German invasion is, at the moment, a senseless bugaboo, according not only to Germans, but also to English officers.

The one thing that can make that fear an actuality, according to many authorities, is a further growth of "French chauvinism and militarism."

Germany—undoubtedly forgetting the ravages her armies made in France—falls perhaps to see the ground for French anxiety and bitterness. On the other hand, the conviction is settling even deeper in the German psychology that France, if unhindered by England, would dismember Germany, leaving her a bloodless land, without economic strength. Germany is bitter over France's play in Upper Silesia. Germany resents constant French pressure in the west, and thinks France would emasculate the German industrial region.

These and other things make the average German feel that France is trying to make more than her pound of flesh. At the same time, the average man forgets the republic at the start, trimmed and backed and filled, seeking outs in the treaty until Wirth came forward with the pronouncement that Germany was going to play fair and proceed to fulfill. Wirth has somewhat swung around the French attitude.

But there is in Germany today a smoldering hatred of France, which perhaps in the next generation—not in this—will lead to a new war.

Germany at present is not in a position to wage war. She is disarmed. I say this on the authority of no less a personage than the British General Bingham, of the allied disarmament commission.

Just now, German industry is too busy trying to capture world markets and meet reparations to think about any more war. And the "man in the street" is even less anxious for a war than perhaps his capitalist master. I have queried groups of laboring men as to whether they wanted any more war. They all agreed they didn't. On one occasion I expressed doubt as to their sincerity and asked if they were willing to sign their names to a sworn statement. They took the matter seriously, and soon brought me a paper with their names, swearing they wanted no more war, and saying the document could be used in any way I wished.

The new Germany has had enough of war.

MAC NIDER NEW COMMANDER OF LEGION FORCES

IOWA SOLDIER ELECTED NATION-
AL CHIEF; KANSAS CITY CON-VENTION COMES TO CLOSE

(By United Press.)

Convention Hall, Kansas City, Nov. 3.—The national convention of the American Legion adjourned here yesterday after electing Hanford MacNider, of Mason City, Iowa, national commander selecting other officers, adopting resolutions covering a wide range of subjects. The convention had been in session without a recess since early morning.

The election of Mr. MacNider to succeed John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich., was made unanimous after more than half of the state delegations had seconded his nomination, and three other candidates nominated, Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City, Earl M. Cline of Nebraska City, Neb., and John F. Williams of Joplin, Mo., had withdrawn in his favor.

Vice Commanders Named

The following vice commanders were elected:

George L. Berry of Rogersville, Tenn.; H. Nelson Jackson of Burlington, Vt., and Charles Kendrick, of San Francisco, representing the army and Raymond Brackett of Marblehead, Mass., and J. A. McCormick of Fort Lyon, Colo., of the navy.

The Rev. Earl Blackman of Chautauque, Kan., a minister of the Christian church—discipline of Christ—was elected national chaplain.

Headquarters Flight Dropped

A fight for the removal of the national headquarters from Indianapolis to Kansas City which the Missouri delegation promised in pre-convention campaigning to bring on the floor, did not develop.

The selection of the Iowan was apparent when state after state delegation seconded his name. Toward the end candidates already nominated began withdrawing in his favor. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City was the first to withdraw his name. Earl M. Cline of Nebraska City then withdrew, and Col. John F. Williams of Joplin, Mo., who also had been nominated, withdrew and asked that MacNider's nomination be made unanimous. The crowd greeted the suggestion with shouts of approval.

New Commander Cheered

The new commander was brought to the platform amid cheers and a big Iowa standard was raised over his head. He thanked the delegation for the honor and declared he realized his responsibility as chief of the Legion.

"Greatest War Hero" Is "Model Husband;" Helps With Dishes

Fort Thomas, Kan., Nov. 3.—Reporters hurried out to the house at 157 Alexandria Pike today to find out what sort of fellow is Sergeant Samuel Woodfill, who has just been proclaimed as outstanding among the greatest of war heroes by General John J. Pershing.

They were met by Mrs. Woodfill. She cited him for most distinguished conduct as a husband. He helps with the dishes, she said, and when she was ill recently he helped his mother-in-law with the housework.

His thoughts are all of his home. He has nine decorations given him by various governments. His wife pins on him what is called the most distinguished honor of all—to wit: "M. H."—model husband. While his wife was thus honoring him, Samuel Woodfill was in Washington to receive the tribute of a grateful nation and participation in the burial Nov. 11 of the "unknown American soldier."

When he received the telegram ordering him to go to Washington and receive the honors due him, he said to his wife: "I am tired of being a circus pony. I wish I could retire to the backwoods, where they could never find me."

HOLDS DEFENDANTS NOT LIABLE IN CASE

Decision Given by Judge W. S. McClenahan in District Court Case
Olson vs Butler Bros.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION Plaintiff Sued Claiming Compensation for Injuries Received While Working in Basement

In the case of O. M. Olson vs Butler Bros., conducting the Ransford hotel, Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court found for the defendants. Alderman & Clark were attorneys for the plaintiff and M. E. and C. A. Ryan for the defendants.

The case attracted considerable interest as it was based on a phase of the workmen's compensation act. According to the complaint filed, Olson said that on November 22, 1920, he was in the employ of the defendants as a fireman or janitor in charge of the heating plant and basement of the Ransford hotel building.

That on that day and while within the scope of his employment and within the terms of the compensation act, plaintiff claimed he was injured by his clothing igniting from a candle near where he worked. That he suffered serious burns and became totally disabled for six months.

That at the time of his injury he was being paid $50 per month and board and room, which was equivalent to $25 per week.

The case was heard before the court without a jury and the judge found:

"That the plaintiff, on November 22, 1920, was injured by reason of his clothing becoming ignited by a candle he was using in doing certain work exclusively for his own purposes and convenience, and wholly personal to himself, and the character of those injuries was substantially as alleged. "That the resulting accident to the plaintiff did not arise out of and in the course of his employment."

As conclusions of law, the judge found "that the defendants are entitled to judgment, that the plaintiff take nothing here, but neither costs or disbursements are allowed."

Community Night Picture

"Fires of Youth", will be presented at the Methodist church on Friday night in their community night picture. This is a powerful drama showing how a little child brought about true cooperation and understanding between the head of a great corporation and his employees. Strong, dignified and fascinating throughout. It is one of the best modern plays.

This picture is secured through the University of Minnesota who are helping wonderfully in the movement to secure good, virile, stirring pictures of the right kind. No charge is made for these pictures but a collection is taken at the door.

In honor of Mrs. E. P. Slipp, a 6 o'clock Halloween luncheon was given by Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Long at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Wescott, 8240 Dante Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The dining room and table were uniquely decorated with Halloween appointments, orange and black, being the color scheme, and covers were laid for twenty.

Conversation and music, instrumental and vocal prevailed during the evening and a very delightful time was spent.

Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Long and Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Long of Gary, Indiana.

NEW PUBLIC HEALTH CAR

City and School Board Asked to Take Over Each One-half of Car Expense Beginning May

At the last regular meeting of the City and School Public Health Nurse Supervising Committee, it was decided that a new Public Health Car should be purchased, and now this car is in the field. At the same meeting it was decided to ask the City Council and the School Board to each take over one-half the expense of the car beginning next May. The necessity of the car in the work has been demonstrated and it would be hard to calculate the good accomplished by its use; this even the monthly reports only give a faint idea of.

But the work of the Nurse as at present carried on, is only a beginning of a fitting program of Public Health for Brainerd. The Committee has in mind certain very needed advancements which should be made, and if the City and Schools will only take over the expense of the car, the committee knows the women of Brainerd will willingly on another Tag Day see that these advancements are made. Plans for these will be discussed at the next meeting if the committee.

CROSBY

I. W. Smith has bought the interests of G. A. Murphy in the Murphy Auto Co., at Ironton.

While driving between Princeton and Milaca the steering wheel of E. O. Shodin's car became unmanageable and the car turned turtle in the ditch. All were bruised and Mr. Shodin had his hand cut by flying glass.

Mrs. W. A. Guth, who was accidentally shot, is at the Miners hospital and gradually recovering.

County board and highway engineer went over the new proposed road leading from the Mississippi river bridge to connect with the new Emily road, and is called state aid road No. 8, a distance of six and one-tenth miles. It is estimated the job will cost about $25,000 for the excavation which will include culverts, clearing and grubbing as well as ditching. Bids will be called for on this stretch of road at the next meeting of the county board on Saturday, Nov. 5.

County Auditor Mahlum and party of friends were fishing at Island lake. Tate Siebenthal, Harry Middleton and P. M. Ostrand attended the Minnesota-Indiana football game in Minneapolis.

M. Marea of Brainerd was in Crosby and the community gaining new members for the Crow Wing County Farm Bureau Association.

WILHELM IS FINISHED; NO MONARCHY NOW

By CARL D. GROAT,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Nov. 3.—Wilhelm of the House of Hohenzollern, now sawing wood at his exile home—Hause Doorn in Holland—has just as good a chance of going back to Germany as Kaiser as I have. The difference in the two cases is that I can't and don't want to, while Wilhelm can't, but may want to.

Americans ask the question, "Will Wilhelm come back," perhaps more frequently than any other about Germany. The answer is an unequivocal "no," if words and deeds of the days since the revolution in Germany are any criterion. Germany doesn't want Wilhelm back. Not even the men who frankly strive for restoration of the monarchical system in Germany want him to lead it.

He is, as the Germans say, "erledigt"—finished.

To the socialists of Germany—and they are legion—Kaiser Wilhelm is a quitter. He fled like a coward in the nation's darkest hour, they say, and any attempt on his part or that of over-zealous friends to restore him would be met with overwhelming opposition.

Germany proved what it thought of monarchists when it put a crimp in Herr Kapp's private pro-monarchistic "Putsch" last year, and since that time the national feeling hasn't swung any more in favor of return of a monarchy. The Erzberger demonstration, a demonstration against reaction, showed that the Junkers and the rabid monarchists who seek to restore the old order through assassination and terrorism haven't a chance.

I would scarcely venture to assert that a constitutional monarchy, such as England's, would not one day come to Germany. But at the moment, the consciousness of the people is for a democracy. The eight-hour day—about the only fruit of the revolution—pleases the German worker, and he knows if a monarchy returns he will exchange it for an industrial slavery of 12 to 14 hours a day at low wages. The men who want a monarchy back are, for the most part, disgruntled individuals, who have lost money or position through the overturn. Released officers curse the new regime.

But for the average man, the republic is satisfactory. Its overturn might perhaps come about through over-heavy tax burdens, for the pro-monarchists appeal to the ignorant with the plea that things were better "in the old days"—neglecting to point out that a lost war with a staggering debt and new economic conditions would not make the common man's lot easier, even under a kaiser.

The monarchists talk of the Crown Prince's son as a possible throne candidate; others would have a Bavarian monarch. But the monarchists themselves—with, of course, some exceptions—say, "Let the republic carry the load, repair the country, and then let us in, say ten or twenty years, seek to restore a monarchy."

Their prospects in that time may be better. At present, Germany isn't troubling itself to any extent with the question. The outside world worries more about it than the German.

INTERESTS OF U. S. AND JAPAN CLASH IN EAST

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the sixth of the series of United Press articles dealing with the forthcoming Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament and Pacific and Far Eastern questions.

By A. L. BRADFORD,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Nov. 3.—The most immediate and impelling task for the Washington Conference is to prevent the birth of another World War—this time in the Far East.

It may be also stated, the honest belief of this government is that before there can be an effective limitation of armament the Washington Conference must first remove potential causes of a future conflict in the Far East.

Thus is explained the reason that prompted the American government to provide for a discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern questions in the Conference on Limitation of Armament, with a view of reaching a solution of these problems.

This also answers the question that is believed to have been in the minds of a large part of the American people—"Why was the Far East injected into the conference?" The answer given to this question, however, promotes another question—"What danger is there of the United States going to war over Far Eastern questions?"

Speculation about what issues might cause a war in the Far East and what powers might become embroiled is dangerous, and, of course, not humanly possible to forecast accurately.

But, there is no doubt that the United States and Japan have more reasons to feel concerned about the possibility of a future war in the Far East than any other two powers.

Japan might be warranted, or feel so, in calling on her ally, Great Britain, to come to her aid in the event of such a conflict, under the terms of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

The United States is utterly opposed to this alliance.

Article 2 of the alliance provides that "If * * * either High Contracting Party (either Japan or Great Britain) should be involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests * * *, the other High Contracting Party will at once come to the assistance of its ally, and will conduct the war in common, and make peace in mutual agreement with it."

It is true that the United States is indirectly exempted from the application of this phase of the alliance, but equally true that this indirect exemption is not to the entire satisfaction of this country. In the 1921 renewal of the Alliance, it was provided by Article IV, "Should either High Contracting Party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such Contracting Party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treaty of arbitration is in force."

This provision was put in the alliance so that Great Britain would not be called upon to go to war against the United States, as Great Britain had negotiated a convention of general arbitration with this country, which, however, failed of ratification by the American Senate, and, consequently, is not in force. There is a treaty of limited arbitration in force between the United States and Great Britain, however, but the United States government does not regard this convention as applying technically to the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

The policies of the United States and of Japan in the Far East are almost in direct opposition. No power has violated the American policy of the "Open Door" in the Far East as has Japan, with her network of economic privileges, exclusive concessions and monopolies in China.

Likewise, Japan has done more to encroach on the administrative integrity, and probably the territorial integrity, of China than any other power, while the United States has always sought to preserve the administrative and territorial integrity of China.

As the result of the break-up of the Russian empire, Japan holds under her military sway a vast area of Russian territory in Siberia, with the United States and the other powers fearful of what rash step Japan's imperialistic policy will lead her to take next toward annexing this rich field for Japanese expansion.

Japan's activities in the Far East have led to repeated protests from the United States. Japan probably believes the United States would never take any direct action over a Far Eastern issue. Thus American protests become less and less effectual.

The American government hopes a "show-down" will come in the limitation of armament conference.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the sixth of the series of United Press articles dealing with the forthcoming Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament and Pacific and Far Eastern questions.

By A. L. BRADFORD, (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Nov. 3.—The most immediate and impelling task for the Washington Conference is to prevent the birth of another World War—this time in the Far East.

It may be also stated, the honest belief of this government is that before there can be an effective limitation of armament the Washington Conference must first remove potential causes of a future conflict in the Far East.

Thus is explained the reason that prompted the American government to provide for a discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern questions in the Conference on Limitation of Armament, with a view of reaching a solution of these problems.

This also answers the question that is believed to have been in the minds of a large part of the American people—"Why was the Far East injected into the conference?" The answer given to this question, however, promotes another question—"What danger is there of the United States going to war over Far Eastern questions?"

Speculation about what issues might cause a war in the Far East and what powers might become embroiled is dangerous, and, of course, not humanly possible to forecast accurately.

But, there is no doubt that the United States and Japan have more reasons to feel concerned about the possibility of a future war in the Far East than any other two powers.

Japan might be warranted, or feel so, in calling on her ally, Great Britain, to come to her aid in the event of such a conflict, under the terms of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

The United States is utterly opposed to this alliance.

Article 2 of the alliance provides that "If * * * either High Contracting Party (either Japan or Great Britain) should be involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests * * *, the other High Contracting Party will at once come to the assistance of its ally, and will conduct the war in common, and make peace in mutual agreement with it."

It is true that the United States is indirectly exempted from the application of this phase of the alliance, but equally true that this indirect exemption is not to the entire satisfaction of this country. In the 1921 renewal of the Alliance, it was provided by Article IV, "Should either High Contracting Party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such Contracting Party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treaty of arbitration is in force."

This provision was put in the alliance so that Great Britain would not be called upon to go to war against the United States, as Great Britain had negotiated a convention of general arbitration with this country, which, however, failed of ratification by the American Senate, and, consequently, is not in force. There is a treaty of limited arbitration in force between the United States and Great Britain, however, but the United States government does not regard this convention as applying technically to the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

The policies of the United States and of Japan in the Far East are almost in direct opposition. No power has violated the American policy of the "Open Door" in the Far East as has Japan, with her network of economic privileges, exclusive concessions and monopolies in China.

Likewise, Japan has done more to encroach on the administrative integrity, and probably the territorial integrity, of China than any other power, while the United States has always sought to preserve the administrative and territorial integrity of China.

As the result of the break-up of the Russian empire, Japan holds under her military sway a vast area of Russian territory in Siberia, with the United States and the other powers fearful of what rash step Japan's imperialistic policy will lead her to take next toward annexing this rich field for Japanese expansion.

Japan's activities in the Far East have led to repeated protests from the United States. Japan probably believes the United States would never take any direct action over a Far Eastern issue. Thus American protests become less and less effectual.

The American government hopes a "show-down" will come in the limitation of armament conference.

RATE CUTS—WAGE REDUCTION

New tariffs are being prepared by the railroads of the Northwest, providing for the reduction of rates on grain and hay, as recommended by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is announced. But what is perhaps of more general interest hereabouts is the additional announcement that initial steps toward reducing wages 10 per cent also were being made as recommended by the Commission, which, in its findings in the rate reduction case, criticized the carriers for failure to cut operating expenses by this means. Employees will shortly be asked to meet with the executives relative to a downward revision of the wage scale, and in case of failure to agree, appeal application will be made to the Railroad Labor Board as required by the Transportation act. As this Board, however, has announced that it will not consider wage reductions until various questions concerning working rules and conditions are heard and passed upon, it is likely reduction, if finally decided upon, will not be effective for at least six months or more.

The rate cut, as emphasized by the Commission, is experimental, to determine whether the reduced charge will increase the volume of traffic sufficiently to permit the carriers to operate under the lower rates without additional losses. The reduction suggested was one-half of the rate increase made in 1920, approximately 12 per cent.

Traffic officials claim that extensive rate reductions already have been made despite contentions to the contrary advanced during the strike controversy, and point to a long list of commodities on which they say lower rates now prevail, as shown by their records. The majority of these reductions, they assert, have affected the revenues of Northwest lines, and doubt is expressed that the additional lower rates now proposed will increase traffic sufficiently to prevent heavy financial losses through the lower revenue per shipment.

OPEN OR PUBLIC SESSIONS?

There is a good deal of "bunk" in the clamor of some radical newspapers for open sessions of the Conference on Limitation of Armament. It seems to be very generally conceded that the sessions will be open to the public only as to the formal proceedings, if at all, because of the gravity and importance of the subjects to be considered.

No one should expect actual agreements to be reached in open session. If the sessions are public, it will be merely to give public announcement to what has been agreed upon in private conference. It is very generally admitted by all scholars that we could not have had the Constitution of the United States had the doors been open. Party representatives agree upon a party policy without a caucus. A mass meeting for the most laudable purposes sends out a committee to iron out minor difficulties and present satisfactory resolutions.

The futility of a public debate in international affairs is obvious. No representative of any country could withdraw from a stand he had taken without risk to his political life. There is no crime in secrecy when all parties at interest are present or represented. It may be the only way to reach agreement. An agreement thus reached may be formally adopted with calm, illuminating discussion. It will be remembered that when the treaty of Versailles was framed there were many disputes over which parts of Europe grew greatly excited. Everything was settled amicably after secret discussions by representatives of the powers.

However, the methods of procedure is to be determined by the Conference itself when it meets and organizes.

ALIENS SHOULD BE REGISTERED

That man Davis, our energetic Secretary of Labor, certainly has some very sensible notions in regard to the immigrants who are flocking to this country. Himself a naturalized alien, he told the House Immigration Committee that what this country needs is a compulsory registration law for all aliens, including the millions already here and those eager to come. "Every alien ought to be registered, and it should be mandatory," he said. "We ought to keep tabs every three months on the foreigner who wants to become a citizen, to help him along, and to show him something about our system of living and government. The big thing is to protect the alien from those who are taking advantage of him."

INTRASTATE TRANSPORTATION RATES

The authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to supervise purely intrastate transportation rates probably will not be finally determined before the new year, it is said, as a result of the Supreme Court ordering a reargument of the Wisconsin rate case involving this disputed point.

The case was ordered docketed for reargument on Dec. 5, and there have been few instances in which the court has handed down a decision in a major case in less than a month after it was argued.

When we read that the Hohenzollern boys have gone to work we will be prepared to believe that Germany is as broke as she says she is.

The Lincoln, Neb., Star accurately defines an optimist as "a man who believes the present Congress will some day revise the tax bill."

The cancel appeal from Europe indicates development of its sense of touch at the expense of its sense of taste.

MONEY DOES NOT MAKE FOOL

We beg leave to differ. It isn't money that makes a fool of the man who gets it. He was a fool before he got it, but was not in a position to disclose his folly so publicly. The rich man who gives monkey dinners, the rich woman who has her shoe heels set with diamonds, and their prodigal son who spends his substance on the leeches that infest the land of riotous living—these are not fools because they are rich. They would have been fools in any case.

The poor man who earns $50 for which he has no immediate pressing need, and devotes it to foolishness, is just as silly as the newly-arrived millionaire who splurges conspicuously that he may be talked of or gaped at. A Chicago young man joined a robbery party and obtained $45,000 in cash as his share of the loot. The others were apprehended and imprisoned, but he made his escape, carrying a young woman with him. He bought airships, automobiles and other spectacular luxuries, besides furbelows for his sweetheart. Soon his money was gone, and now he is in jail, sans liberty, sans cash, sans sweetheart, sans everything.—St. Cloud Journal Press.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Lyceum

An extremely funny situation was produced by Larry Semon for his comedy "The Rent Collector" which was shown at the Lyceum theater last night and will be shown again tonight. The scene is located in a barber shop under the side-walk. Through a hole in the side-walk window, two youngsters lower a spider before the barber. The frightened tonsorial artist smashes the hair tonic bottle in a wild attempt to kill the arachnoid, but the sagacious insect leaps onto the face of the customer in the barber's chair.

The barber smashes a pitcher on the face of the man. Then the trouble begins. The fat man, angered, wipes the floor with the barber and seats himself in a chair for a shave. He is comfortably placed when a barrel of tar is overturned in the street, trickles down through the hole in the side-walk window, covering the face of the fat man. He again cleans the floor with the barber, and starts to shave himself, but the cup is filled with tar and he gives another coat to his face. Angered, he moves to another part of the shop and arrives just as a two-hundred pound weight crashes through the ceiling landing upon his head.

New Park Tomorrow

Wolves of the desert and wolves of Wall street play an equally prominent part in "Danger Valley."

The trail of romance and adventure, of struggle and conflict, leads from the financial heart of America to the terrible desolation of Death Valley, California.

The story opens in a broker's office. Word has just come from the company's engineer that certain mining property has been enveloped by a sandstorm, all trails and marks obscured and no one is able to locate the mine. As maps of the desert are lacking, Goulding, the president, calls on Doug McBride (Neal Hart), an engineer credited with being the only man who knows the desert well enough to locate the mine without maps.

Reggie Van Zant, society man and plunger, opposes the employment of McBride. Van Zant wants Goulding's daughter and has conspired to bring about her father's financial ruin in order to further his purpose. McBride arrives from the West, accepts the assignment, meets Goulding's daughter and falls in love with her. Van Zant's jealousy is aroused.

McBride leaves for the desert. Goulding's finances are in such disastrous condition that he determines to meet his creditors and leave for the lost mine, taking his daughter with him.

McBride arrives in Yucca, a small desert town, and enters a saloon just in time to rescue an Indian from death at the hands of three white men. The Indian knows where a map of the desert is to be had, gets it with difficulty, and accompanies McBride for the location on the desert.

Goulding and his party arrive and employ a guide to take them to the mine. The guide is in league with Van Zant to thwart Goulding. A route is chosen which is barren of water and the wayfarers undergo tortures of terrible thirst, finally being caught in a sandstorm, or "Santa Ana." Van Zant succumbs.

McBride locates the mine and on his return trip comes upon the Goulding party just as the grim reaper is about to take additional toll.

Aileen, Goulding's daughter, has not accompanied her father on his trip to the mine, but rides out on the desert watching for his return and is deceived by a mirage and lured into the desolation of Death Valley. McBride leads a party to her rescue.

The recovery of the mine re-establishes Goulding financially, and McBride wins the hand of the girl, bringing happy romance out of the grim tragedy that threatened.

No Places for Grouches When Chaplin Plays

The New Park theatre is no place for a person with an ingrown grouch and proud of it. For "The Idle Class," Charles Chaplin's latest comedy, began a two day run there yesterday, and we will guarantee it to kill any grouch, no matter how chronic, within the space of a few seconds.

Charlie's first appearance on the screen—when he crawls out from under a railroad coach—is the signal for the laughing to start, and the comedian never gives it an opportunity to subside.

"The Idle Class" is fast, furious, fun. Ask anybody who saw it yesterday.

mous stage production, "The Heart of Maryland." The play was a phenomenal success, but the film has achieved even greater triumph, for with the camera it is possible to obtain scenes, locations and settings that could not be reproduced with painted canvas.

Tom Terries, who directed the production, has made every effort to produce a picture which would have a historic value and be of interest to the pupils of the public schools. It has secured for this purpose many authentic locations which played important roles in the conflict between 1861-1865.

He used such sites as The Briars, General Grant's headquarters; the mansion in which Jefferson Davis was married and where great balls were given in honor of Henry Clay. For the chapel scene he secured a location where a famous traitor was tried. This chapel is one of the historic places of the South, but has long since fallen into decay and is given over to colored people as a place of worship.

In some of the big scenes 1000 men and a score of horses are used. The belfry scene, in which the heroine swings out over the village, clinging to the clapper of a church bell, was filmed in a chapel that played an important part in the Civil War.

The thrilling story, interwoven with three clever love tales, introduces such beloved characters as Abraham Lincoln and Gen. Robert E. Lee, and is sure to make an extraordinary picture. An all-star combination makes up the cast, Catherine Calvert, well known as a stage player, heading the company. Opposite her is that popular screen player, Crane Wilbur. William Collier, Jr., is another notable member of the cast.

On Friday noon members of the Business and Professional Women's club will be on the school grounds of the public schools to sell to the children tickets for the picture to be shown at a special matinee Monday afternoon at four-fifteen.

The club receives half of all proceeds from the tickets sold by them, but no part of those sold at the box office. Those who desire to help the club should arrange to purchase tickets through the different members. The price of the children's tickets is 10 cents. Adults are 25c, including tax.

As maps of the desert are lacking, Goulding, the president, calls on Doug McBride (Neal Hart), an engineer credited with being the only man who knows the desert well enough to locate the mine without maps.

Reggie Van Zant, society man and plunger, opposes the employment of McBride. Van Zant wants Goulding's daughter and has conspired to bring about her father's financial ruin in order to further his purpose. McBride arrives from the West, accepts the assignment, meets Goulding's daughter and falls in love with her. Van Zant's jealousy is aroused.

McBride leaves for the desert. Goulding's finances are in such disastrous condition that he determines to meet his creditors and leave for the lost mine, taking his daughter with him.

McBride arrives in Yucca, a small desert town, and enters a saloon just in time to rescue an Indian from death at the hands of three white men. The Indian knows where a map of the desert is to be had, gets it with difficulty and accompanies McBride for the location on the desert.

Goulding and his party arrive and employ a guide to take them to the mine. The guide is in league with Van Zant to thwart Goulding. A route is chosen which is barren of water and the wayfarers undergo tortures of terrible thirst, finally being caught in a sandstorm, or "Santa Ana." Van Zant succumbs.

McBride locates the mine and on his return trip comes upon the Goulding party just as the grim reaper is about to take additional toll.

Aileen, Goulding's daughter, had not accompanied her father on his trip to the mine, but rides out on the desert watching for his return and is deceived by a mirage and lured into the desolation of Death Valley. McBride leads a party to her rescue.

The recovery of the mine re-establishes Goulding financially, and McBride wins the hand of the girl, bringing happy romance out of the grim tragedy that threatened.

No Places for Grouches When Chaplin Plays

The New Park theatre is no place for a person with an ingrown grouch and proud of it. For "The Idle Class," Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy, began a two day run there yesterday, and we will guarantee it to kill any grouch, no matter how chronic, within the space of a few seconds.

Charlie's first appearance on the screen—when he crawls out from under a railroad coach—is the signal for the laughing to start, and the comedian never gives it an opportunity to subside.

"The Idle Class" is fast, furious, fun. Ask anybody who saw it yesterday.

For the first time in the history of Crow Wing county newly made citizens were cordially greeted by the community and made to feel that the momentous step they had taken, securing the old country ties and joining their lot with America, was something to be made much of.

With Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court presiding and R. K. Doe of Duluth, federal examiner, in attendance, the candidates for citizenship were questioned as to their knowledge of American institutions and laws.

As the federal examiner called the names of these in groups according to old country ties, they were given the oath of allegiance by Clerk of Court W. A. M. Johnstone. First came a group from Serbia, then from England, Norway, Finland, Sweden and Germany.

Federal Examiner Doe made a short talk on citizenship and the assimilation then retired to the farmers room on the main floor of the court house. Here through the initiative of the Rotary club a luncheon had been provided. Assisting were the League of Women Voters who were most efficient in serving. Others who assisted through members were the Chamber of Commerce, Business and Professional Women's club, etc. The civics class of the high school was in attendance to observe the ceremony and examination conducted, and sang "America".

MUST HAVE A TARIFF ON ORE

(Crosby Courier)

A meeting was held at the Ironton village hall whereby a number of citizens of Ironton and Crosby were present to hear Chas. W. Potts of Deerwood, who had recently returned from Washington, D. C., where he had spent the past year lobbying in the U. S. senate in the interest of a tariff on manganese ore.

Mr. Potts went into the subject thoroughly and explained conditions as they now exist, continuing by saying that if a tariff was not placed upon foreign (Brazilian) ores it was just a matter of time that the mine owners of this range and elsewhere in the state were doomed and unable to mine at a profit to meet the price of ores exported to this country. He also pointed out that a large per cent of foreign ore were owned by American capital who were doing all in their power to keep it on the free list and as a consequence would cripple industries, like on the Cuyuna range.

Labor at the Brazilian ports, he asserted, during the world war was approximately 60 cents per day per man, while at the present time an estimate of 20 to 30 cents per man is being paid. To cope with the situation of that kind is unreasonable unless a tax on these foreign ores are made.

After a thorough discussion it was thought advisable to form an organization whereby a committee was appointed to work in harmony with the project and exert all efforts in having our senators and congressmen, to vote in favor of that tax. Those appointed were: D. B. McAlpine, chairman; Louis Bauer, secretary; Robert Marsh, Edward Krueger, Phil Ellingson and A. H. Proctor.

Lutheran Deaconesses Necessary to Morale of Discouraged Communities.

A church in any language means a church, and so does a school and hospital, but European deaconess homes suffer in the translating. To the average American the term "deaconess home" suggests a stone building of sober hue, whose lay-sister inmates, most of them aged and decrepit, with white lawn streamers beneath their chins, take their ease and spend their declining days puttering around with window boxes and bird cages. All wrong!

Webster's Unabridged fails to enlighten him, but the National Lutheran Council, with headquarters at New York City, is spreading the definition far and wide. A deaconess home means a social welfare colony maintained by these women church workers. A hospital, clinic, homes for cripples and the aged, schools for the deaf and blind, a day nursery, milk station, and a social service bureau, are the institutions that usually make up one of these welfare centers. In America there are numbers of them patterned after the models in Europe where they have existed by the thousand for many generations. In European cities of any size they serve the neighboring communities and have closer touch with the people than any other organization. Nobody is as busy as these hardy, rosy-cheeked women who give their full time from morning till night, or from night until morning, managing and running their big plants that take care of people.

Deaconess homes over there are not retreats in any sense. They are active, progressive, public places. But even so they are pretty independent of the outside world. They do their own work and have their own food supply. The deaconesses make use of their varied hobbies, so there are bee specialists, poultry experts, gardeners, dairy farmers, and orchardists who know all about pruning and spraying, and keeping the children from picking green fruit. Most of them, of course, do this work during their recreation hour after finishing a day of nursing, teaching, sewing, or visiting the poor. They are very handy about the place. A carpenter's strike would be a small matter to them because there is always some demure-eyed sister who can wield an accurate hammer.

This sketches the average deaconess home in Central Europe in normal times. Such times are past history to a great degree, antedating 1914. Since then war has crippled the work so that it is scarcely recognizable. Their houses were shelled, robbed and burned. Sisters were shot and carried captive. But those who were left kept steadily at their posts, and braver, harder work at reconstruction is not being done in the world. Communities are so wholly dependent upon them. Nobody else knows how to do anything in times of distress. Relief funds sent by American Lutherans have been largely dispensed through deaconesses in each town. By this simple financing they are enabled to handle the emergencies through the channels of their own regular work. Some of the welfare centers have been restored and are doing heavier work than ever before, though with depleted staffs and in bitter poverty.

In the World Service Campaign that the National Lutheran Council is to conduct the last two weeks in October to raise $1,250,000 for European Relief, deaconess homes have a large place in the budget for the coming year. From Petrograd to the Southern Tyrol, and from Cologne to Constantinople, these colonies of mercy are to be reinforced, so that each in its own sphere can be a healing refuge to the sick, afflicted and oppressed in those war and famine-maimed lands.

LONG DIVISION

A New Problem in International Affairs.

If $200.00 is sent by courier 700 miles by rail, steamship, and horse cart, and divided among 100 pastors and their families, how much does each pastor receive? The answer depends altogether upon the geography involved. This time the pastors happen to be in and around Moscow, so the answer is 200,000 rubles each. Dr. John A. Morehead, European Commissioner for the National Lutheran Council that operates in 17 countries over there, met a Moscow merchant in Berlin in the summer, who possessed one of the rarest scraps of paper in the world—a passport from the Soviets—and who offered his services as confidential messenger to the Bishop of Moscow.

Dr. Morehead checked out $200.00 and by the time the good merchant reached Moscow, by way of the Baltic Sea, through Riga, and a journey by cart and by foot over a distance where the railroad had rusted out, he was weighed down with 4,000,000 rubles. These were the first gifts or word from the outside that the Lutherans had had in three years. The money bought one meal a day of black bread and rice, for nearly a week, for each family, with a little change left over where they were extremely economical, sometimes even enough to buy a candle.

How He Could Tell

A Georgia "cracker" tells this story on his own people: He says a Northern man who had settled in Georgia was visited by a friend who asked him how he liked the place and the people.

"Oh, all right," replied the man. "Now tell me," asked the friend, "what is a 'Georgia cracker'?" How can you tell him from another person?"

"Well," replied the Northern settler, "you see out in that field a black object?"

"Yes," said the friend. "Now," said the man, "that may be either a 'Georgia cracker' or a stump. Watch it for half an hour, and if it moves, why, it's a stump."

Gas On Stomach Won't Let You Sleep

Gas often presses on heart and other organs, causing a restless, nervous feeling which prevents sleep. Simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, expels gas and relieves pressure almost INSTANTLY, inducing restful sleep. Adlerika often removes surprising old matter from both upper and lower bowel which poisoned the stomach and caused gas. EXCELLENT to guard against appendicitis. Johnson's Pharmacy.

Jail Fare.

Comets Make Short Visits.

The visits of comets to our region of space are generally of brief duration. Two years is the longest time a comet has been continuously visible through the telescope.

In the future when any member of the N. Y. Police Department embarks on a particularly dangerous mission he will be protected by the latest in light armor, a steel corset or bullet jacket. The jacket is made of Norwegian steel plates, silk and canvas. It weighs six pounds and has been proven practical in tests. The jacket is shown deflecting a bullet fired at close range.

USE THE OLD-TIME SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR AND NOBODY WILL KNOW

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger. Adv.
